GREETINGS

Indiana University Bloomington Honors Convocation

Welcome to Our Guests

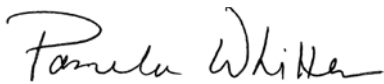

We are delighted to welcome you to this Honors Convocation, an annual celebration of academic achievement. Today, we proudly recognize our Founders Scholars, seniors graduating with the Hutton Honors College Notation, and other accomplished undergraduates.

Honors Convocation is a powerful reminder of Indiana University Bloomington's reputation as a leader in public higher education—a reputation built on the exceptional achievements of our students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

Since its founding more than 200 years ago, Indiana University has experienced remarkable growth, developing a rich legacy of teaching and learning. The students we honor today are integral to that legacy. They have shown intellectual curiosity, discipline, and engagement, embracing rigorous study as a welcome challenge. Their current accomplishments signal a bright future for them and for all of us.

We extend our heartfelt congratulations to our students for their remarkable accomplishments, and we warmly welcome their families and friends on this milestone occasion.

Most sincerely,

Pamela Whitten
President
Indiana University

Rahul Shrivastav
Provost and Executive Vice President
Indiana University

IN CELEBRATION OF SUSTAINED ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

Today's Honors Convocation on the Indiana University Bloomington campus acknowledges outstanding students who have earned a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.8 on a 4.0 scale by the end of the 2024 fall term. These honorees are known as Founders Scholars. At this year's convocation, we individually recognize seniors who have achieved this distinction, as well as seniors who are graduating with the Hutton Honors Notation. Students who have received prestigious university and external awards and freshman, sophomore, and junior Founders Scholars are recognized as a group. The students honored today represent units of the university listed here and are congratulated by IU President Pamela Whitten and these officials:

2025 SUSAN BUTLER AWARD

This award is in memory of Susan Butler, the mother of Margaret Butler Snow, a supporter of Indiana University during the Great Depression. It is given to a graduating senior woman for outstanding scholarship and character.

Julia M. Heath

2025 CLARA JAVAN GOODBODY AWARD

This award is in memory of Clara Javan Goodbody, the mother of Louise Ann Goodbody, who served as the IU dean of women from 1906 to 1911. It is given to a graduating senior for outstanding scholarship and character.

Lauren "Wren" Garcia

2025 P. J. AND HILDA W. HILL AWARD

The P. J. and Hilda W. Hill Award was established through a gift from P. J. Hill, a 1920 graduate of Indiana University. Each spring the award is presented to one or more outstanding IU Bloomington seniors for commitment to creating an equitable and inclusive campus. P. J. Hill earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Indiana University. He was the first African American principal of an American desegregated secondary school.

Aissatou Mbengue

2025 KATE HEVNER MUELLER OUTSTANDING SENIOR AWARDS

This award recognizes IU Bloomington seniors who have demonstrated leadership on campus both inside and outside of the classroom. Kate Mueller served Indiana University from 1937 to 1969 as a professor of education, dean of women, and senior counselor for women. She was an advocate of pursuing excellence in scholarship, research, and cocurricular activities.

A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY OF INDIANA UNIVERSITY'S FIRST PRESIDENT, ANDREW WYLIE (1789–1851)

In 1824 the Indiana Seminary opened its doors as an outpost of higher education in the frontier. Four years later it became a college, and the trustees elected their first president, Andrew Wylie. Then 39 years old, Wylie had already made a name for himself as a scholar, educator, and leader. The son of an Irish farmer, Wylie graduated from Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Pennsylvania, in 1810 at the age of 20, continued at Jefferson as a tutor, and was unanimously elected president of that institution two years later. In 1817 he resigned the presidency there to accept the presidency of neighboring Washington College. His plan to unite the two schools, however, was ahead of its time—not until 1865 did they merge to become Washington and Jefferson College. Perhaps the discord engendered by the failed merger inclined Wylie to a sympathetic reading of David Maxwell's letter of May 7, 1828, informing him of his election to the presidency of Indiana College.

With his wife, Margaret, and nine children, Wylie moved to Bloomington and assumed his new duties in October 1829, joining a faculty of two and a student body of 40. Here, in addition to his administrative responsibilities, Wylie instructed the seniors in literature, philosophy and ethics, and political economy. Matthew Elder, an 1840 graduate, later recalled that his senior professor

... was stout, had a fine healthful appearance, slightly tinged, however, with sadness which only disappeared entirely when in a mirthful mood he became a boy again. He was very intellectual, his mental faculties naturally strong being developed into powers by long and careful study. He was thoroughly conversant with all the metaphysical theories that had agitated the world, was one of the finest Belles Lettres scholars, read Latin, Greek, Hebrew, French, and German as fluently as he did his native language, and he was one of the best readers of English I ever heard. When he walked the streets he appeared abstracted, never shaking hands nor conversing with any one, a nod of recognition being invariably his habit.

He lectured to the Senior class every day and every member was required to write out the lecture and read it to him in the morning. Besides hearing and writing out his lecture every day, I recited to him in private a lesson in Latin or Greek. . . .

In this way I became very familiar with Dr. Wylie and learned that instead of being distant and stern he was remarkably social and as tenderhearted as a child. He and [his cousin] Professor [Theophilus] Wylie visited me when I was sick, walking a mile when they did so.

In 1835 Wylie moved his growing family (now 11 children, and one more on the way) from a rented house on Morton Street to their newly constructed home, a red brick mansion on East Second Street. Situated on five acres, with an additional large woodlot south of town, the president could again indulge his boyhood love of farming and manual labor. He wrote to his son John, "My health with the labors and cares that are upon me would fail were it not that I sweat at the hoe every day." Chopping wood was his favorite exercise for strengthening the body and quieting the mind.

Andrew Wylie successfully guided the university through 22 difficult and formative years—through economic crises and partisan political battles, student unrest, and faculty wars. He carried on through personal grief, losing three sons as young adults. Wylie died of pneumonia on November 11, 1851, at the age of 62, still engaged in the work of building the university.

Wylie House Museum recreates the Wylie home of the 1840s. The museum is open Wednesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m.–4 p.m. For more information, call Wylie House at 812-855-6224 or visit libraries.indiana.edu/wylie-house-museum.
